WILL VOTE ON STREET LIGHTS NEXT TUESDAY

Hillsides As Well As Business Section To Benefit By Lighting

Brisbane voters will decide as to whether they want street lights at an election to be held Tuesday, August 31. There will be only one voting precinct, 301 Visitacion avenue, for the entire district.

Many have somewhat misinterpreted the wording on the sample ballots, especially the phrase "Highway Lighting District" which appears on the ballot. The state law requires this phrase to appear on the ballot, but it has no bearing as to the placement of the lights.

Fifty-four lights in all, costing approximately 65c per year per lot, are planned for. Fifty per cent of these will be on the hillsides and fifty per cent on the lower levels and business section.

A map at the Annis Realty Company offices shows the exact locations of each and every street light on the scheduled improvement.

More lights may be added at any future time by petition with a sufficient number of signatures.

This is a long needed improvement in Brisbane and will do much in adding actual dollars and cents valuation to each and every lot and home in the town.

Without adequate street lighting any town or community is at a disadvantage for further growth, but with a correct lighting program the same locality is assured of rapid future progress.

To those who are somewhat confused as to the wording on the ballot it is well to state that this election is not to place lights on the Bayshore highway, but for lights only to be erected within the town limits of Brisbane.

BADEN KENNEL CLUB TO CLOSE SATURDAY EVE

The curtain rings down Saturday night, August 28, on the 1937 greyhound racing season at Baden Kennel club.

High in attendance, popular for its formful events and nationally renowned for innovations offered this meeting, the Baden track closes with the richest running in history, a $1,500 added Derby, open to greyhounds of all ages.

With all the champions, including the famous "Gold Dust Twins," Andrew's Pride and Mike Andrew of P. J. Olmo's superb kennel, entered, the Derby Saturday attracts unusual attention because it is being raced over the seven-sixteenths mile marathon course.

In writing the names of Baden's champion dogs for the season, three head the list. They are Andrew's Pride, Mike Andrew and Doctor Vance. A novice, Plum Shot, owned by Buck Jones, ranks with them because of annexing the California Derby for state-bred two year olds last week, and for the remarkable manner in which the green pup outfooted more experienced candidates for the rich stake. Caperton Boy, Miss Traffic Court, Sergeant Troy, Dreamy Dick, Big Machine, Vice Versa and a host of others too numerous to name stand out, as do the hurdlers.

Baden's new safety hurdles, which have set the style for other American tracks, resulted in developing a higher calibre of jumper, and Baden is blessed with Sailor Joe, the Elfrinks, Harry and Jerry, Dutch Reuther, Brandy Flask, Hope's Goer, Doctor Grey and other skilled jumping dogs.

Ore Mined From South S. F. Hill Proves Valuable

"Thar's silver in them thar' hills."

This variation of the old gold prospectors' saying was heard in more technical language from the lips of experts who have analyzed the ore taken from a new vein found high in the hills back of South San Francisco.

James Bradley, director of the Bradley Mining Company, said that specimens taken from the vein, which runs through an approximately 20-acre site, assays 20 to 40 ounces of silver per ton, 15 to 25 per cent lead, 25 to 30 per cent zinc.

It was indicated that the strike may presage eventual large scale mining operations not far from the big electric sign atop one of the hills. The company has subleased the vein property.

Bradley revealed that it was the chance curiosity of a sign builder which led to the discovery of the rich ore.

The sign builder noticed a peculiar rock on the hillside, took it to a mining engineer and learned the presence of silver, zinc and lead in the rock.

Immediate prospects are for a thorough investigation and study of the property, which contains an old mine shaft now being cleaned out preparatory to exhaustive exploratory operations.

In addition to the Bradley holdings, other leases have been made on adjacent properties east of the Bayshore highway by H. T. Martin, a broker, and by Smith & Finley. None contemplates the issuance of stock, it was declared.

Force Of Fifty Men Put On At Hi School

Yesterday, a force of fifty men from the WPA began work on the Jefferson Union High School grounds. The first job begun was the laying of the sewer connecting the high school gymnasium and swimming pool with the city sewer at the southwest corner of the football field.

The next job will be the grading and landscaping of the grounds between the swimming pool and the football field, and also around the tennis courts. The road leading to the football field wlil also be completed.

Joe Millett, who is inspector on the gymnasium and swimming pool construction unit, will also supervise this project.

All of the labor will be furnished by the WPA of San Mateo County and the expense met by the federal government. The only cost to the high school district will be for the tile needed for the sewers.

NEWSPAPER MEN PREPARE PLAY FOR THE STAGE

Current Federal Theater Production Considered Best Seen At Local House For Some Time

Newspaper people from all parts of Northern California have been attracted to the current play "Power," at the Alcazar Theater, more than to any other Federal Theaters production, according to the Public Relations Department of the Project.

"Power" was prepared for the stage by newspaper men of the Living Newspaper unit of the Federal Theater in New York. Its nineteen fast moving scenes were written with the same punch that is given a last minute news bulletin that hits Page 1. Being a Living Newspaper play, the drama is presented in quick flashes of spot news. The action starts just before the climax lives through the peak, shows immediate result and ceases, to be followed in quick succession by climax after climax, the essence of each episode expressed in a few moments.

The basis of the Living Newspaper drama is entirely in fact, not fiction. The original conception of this form of drama is that of Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, national director of the Federal Theaters. It is felt by theater critics to be the one dramatic technique which is only in its infancy. The production staff of "Power" holds as important a place as the actors, for there must be perfect syntheses of action, costume, scene, music, light and movement.

This new form of theater has caused wide discussion in San Francisco. It will be followed by the Eugene O'Neill, Pulitzer prize drama, "Beyond The Horizon."

ONE HUNDRED FRESHMEN NOW AT HIGH SCHOOL

Six Hundred Pupils Enrolled At Opening Session On Monday

Six hundred and five pupils answered the roll on last Monday morning at the Jefferson Union High School for the opening of the new school year. Of these over one hundred were freshmen who had just graduated from Grammar School and thirty were new students registering in Jefferson for the first time. Of these new students some came from places as far away as Utah and Nebraska, while a large proportion were students whose families had moved to the Jefferson Union High School District from San Francisco and other cities in California.

Additional enrollment was made on each of the days following, by students whose families were late in returning from their vacations in the country.

Many of the classes, as usual, were filled to overflowing. Seven classes were needed to accommodate the number enrolled in biology. Chemistry required an additional class, as did general mathematics. The enrollment in auto mechanics was double the number that could be

Joe Di Maggio Will Have a Tough Time Busting Bam's Mark

I WAS just wondering:

If Joe Di Maggio has anything more than a faint chance to beat Babe Ruth's home run record of sixty in a season?

The kid's good. He's probably the best two-year-old performer in big time history. He slaps a baseball with authority. American league pitching is of inferior variety. He gets better day by day.

That's all on the credit side. The other side of the ledger is heavily red-inked with the names of Wilsons, Gehrigs, Hornsbys and other broad-backed lads whose August marks and ambitions were similar to Joe's.

September licked them. Ruth had seventeen home runs during that month of his eventful 1927 season. He undoubtedly was in a hitting streak and he also was the Babe, a guy accustomed to performing magic.

Yet, there was more than a suspicion at the time that pitchers were helping him out a bit. Not deliberately tossing him home run balls, you know, but laying fast ones down the middle instead of working the corners. Pitching to him in spots where, during the early season when the pennant race amounted to something, they would not have permitted his bat to come within a foot of a good ball.

Di Maggio

That, so dugout gossip ran, was because he was a swell guy and was aiming at a record which would stand for all time and could only be made by him anyhow. Nothing you could put your finger on maybe and, in fact, nothing wrong with it even if you could establish any truth in the gossip. But baseball authorities did do a bit of serious thinking and strong hinting to their aides at the time.

So—but even though that 17 in September has stumped all the Gehrigs, Hornsbys and Wilsons since then, there's no harm in trying. Joe's a great kid as well as a great ballplayer. Along with Ruth and a few million other fans I say "more power to him."

Dodgers on Downgrade: 1937 Prospects Poor

What is going to happen to Burleigh Grimes next season even if the present owners do continue to flout the best interests of baseball by holding onto the Dodgers?

While wondering, I am not trying to rap the unshaven gentleman who has managed to get himself thrown out of almost as many ball games as his team has won this season. But facts are facts.

A few of these facts are that the Dodgers are not as strong and as interesting as they were twelve months ago. The hustling spirit displayed in late July, August and September of 1936 is missing in spite of front office manipulated ballyhoo to the contrary. The now ailing Mungo, one or two other pitchers for whom Stengel took the blame last year while preparing them for future stardom, Manush and English, veterans with one final flash left in them, have sustained the club.

Burleigh Grimes

The truth is that the club is worse off so far as developing material for a winner next season than it was in 1936. The truth also is that the front office is more interested in applauding the rowdy behavior of its special policemen and in hounding little boys who chase baseballs in the bleachers, than it is in improving for 1938.

So I am wondering about Burleigh and his sad International Leaguers. Stengel was fired and still is being paid the $15,500 due him on his contract, because his team played the second best ball in the league from July 4 until October 1, 1936.

National league ball players are beginning to doubt the infallibility of Umpire Bill Klem's decisions. They continue to plug Dolly Stark as the best in the business except when he gets excited. Beans Reardon's work behind the plate, Babe Pinelli's snappy doings on the bases and George Magerkurth's all-around capability also receive kind words.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

THERE is a map of the United States in Bill Terry's Polo grounds office with red pins marking each city or hamlet that has a ball club . . . Are Sonja Henie and Promoter Jeff Dickson about to indulge in a 50-G lawsuit? And, if so, what's it all about? . . . Keep an eye on little Jane Stanton, California's latest gift to tennis. There are those who insist she will be even better than Jacobs or Marble within another year and anyhow it will be a treat for your eyes just looking at her.

American horse owners are doing well by themselves abroad. J. E. Widener's two-year-old, Unbreakable, won his third straight in the Richmond Stakes and Ralph B. Strassburger's Firozepore whipped the best sprinters in Great Britain at Goodwood recently . . . When the first international yacht race was held between Great Britain and the United States the British took one look at the America, visiting boat, and absolutely refused to bet. That may seem strange behavior for citizens who boast of their sportsmanship, but it also was wisdom. Although the home team made everything as tough as possible for the visitors, America won easily.

Jimmy Dykes knows that he will have to trade some of his pretty pitchers next winter for a catcher and outfield power to catch the Yankees in 1938 . . . Prettiest pitcher of the lot is Monty Stratton, who throws overhand, sidearm, underhand and very well . . . Coach Billy Webb of the White Sox is almost as accomplished a sign-stealer as Detroit's Del Baker . . . You don't want sign-stealers when you play the Yankees, though . . . You want howitzers.

Yankees Helped Giants Get Blondy Ryan

The Giants freely admit that they never would have been able to get Blondy Ryan without the assistance of the Yankees. After Terry had been stymied on the deal for two weeks the Yanks bought Blondy from Milwaukee, ostensibly for their Kansas City farm, then sold him to their National league rivals . . . If Joe Stripp behaves himself and hustles he may be a Giant next season . . . Jimmy Ripple probably will be put on the trading block this winter . . Does the sudden appointment of Babe Hamberger as road secretary mean that the Dodgers really are going to be sold? Usually well-informed baseball people are saying that it does and that Business Manager John Gorman is staying at home to get the books in shape, a job which he does superlatively.

Blondy Ryan

Cleo Locatelli, the welterweight, writes from his home in Italy that Il Duce is readying several more good box fighters to come over here and collect next winter . . . The high moguls (nasty mens call them dumb bunnies) of the U. S. G. A. should take a lesson from the lack of interest being displayed by local golfers in this year's amateur championship.

Intantile Paralysis Wave May Let Science Test Preventive

Nasal Sprays Save Laboratory Monkeys, But Will They Work on Humans?

Hero monkey—that's what science calls the tiny rhesus monkey, like the little fellow here, whose nose is being sprayed in an experiment to test a preventive for infantile paralysis; thousands of monkeys have died in the cause. If the sprays prove successful on humans it may mean the end of pitiful cases like that of the little girl above. The annual, nation-wide series of President's Birthday parties helps to raise funds for the research work; a scene from one is also shown.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

WITH a wave of infantile paralysis assuming serious proportions in the south central region of the United States, science may find its long-awaited opportunity to make mass tests of nose sprays as a means of preventing the dread, crippling disease.

Nasal sprays have proved nearly 100 per cent effective upon laboratory monkeys, which respond to poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) in the same way humans do. But until an extensive outbreak of the disease occurred there was no chance to conduct experiments upon humans, for the lives of large numbers of persons must not be endangered unnecessarily.

Now that outbreak may be at hand, for the south central regions are reporting an increase in "polio" cases far over the normal increase which comes with the summer months. Between May 9 and July 24 there were, according to the United States public health service, 486 cases reported from the west south central region, as compared with only 18 cases for the same period of 1936 and 65 cases for the same period of 1935. During these weeks the east south central region reported 317 cases as compared with 234 in 1936 and 57 in 1935. There was some indication of the spread of the disease eastward.

Doctors hope that the nose spray will be proved definitely successful in its application to human beings, for it is more than a century since the first written account of poliomyelitis was made by a trained physician.

English Doctor Started Crusade.

Even so, progress has been phenomenally rapid in the light of the age of the disease, for it is probably as old as mankind.

But it was only 102 years ago that Dr. John Badham, of Worksop, England, moved by the condition of four tiny patients, pleaded through the medium of medical journals for other doctors to come to his aid with suggestions for the cure of a disease nobody knew anything about.

Dr. Badham's paper, telling of the plight of the four crippled youngsters doomed to pathetically unhappy lives, launched one of the greatest crusades in medical history. Poorly equipped as they were, doctors of the Nineteenth century did not hesitate in responding to the pioneering Badham's call for assistance.

Get on Trail of Germ.

Only five years later, Jacob von Heine, German orthopedic surgeon of Cannstaat, made public an important study of infantile paralysis. His practice brought him in contact with many cases of deformed limbs in children. A shrewd observer, he noticed something about young paralytics which other medical men had largely overlooked. He saw that paralysis was the result of some kind of acute disease which preceded the appearance of muscular weakness.

The discovery was epochal for, in other words, Heine perceived that paralysis in children didn't just happen—it had a definite antecedent cause. He won for himself a place of honor in ranks of those battling against the spread of infantile paralysis. It was a battle that widened to many more fronts as time wore on, and by 1885 the infectious nature of the disease was pretty generally accepted.

Yet it was not until 1908 that the first real advance was made in the search for a germ. Then Landsteiner and Popper, in Paris, injected portions of the brain and spinal chord, taken from a fatal human case of infantile paralysis, into some monkeys. They succeeded in infecting the monkeys with the disease, thus putting it on an experimental basis for the first time. Only a short time later several doctors almost simultaneously managed to pass poliomyelitis from one monkey to another. They were Flexner and Lewis in New York, Leiner and Von Weisner in Vienna, and Landsteiner and Levaditi in Paris.

The way was now cleared to studying the mechanism of the disease. It was indicated how the germ was spreading, but scientists still had not banded in any united effort. It took a national tragedy to wake them up.

In the summer of 1916 the great infantile paralysis epidemic hit the United States. It began in a small area in Brooklyn, then spread rapidly over the rest of New York City and Long Island, eventually cascading over the entire country. It touched every state, and struck down more than 25,000 persons, most of them children.

Health Officers at Loss.

Panic swept the nation. In the mistaken belief that only those under sixteen were susceptible, railroad officials refused to let children ride on trains. Vigilante bands of citizens established unofficial martial law in many places, and health certificates were required as "passports" for children moving from one community to another.

Health officers made every conceivable effort to check the disease, but they still lacked a working knowledge of ways and means to combat its ravages. The epidemic died of itself, finally, and so did public terror. There have been less epidemics since then; 15,000 cases were reported in 1931, and 10,000 each in the years 1927 and 1935.

Medical science recognized infantile paralysis as one of its most challenging problems and redoubled its efforts to find an answer. Foundations, research laboratories both public and private, universities and individual physicians and research workers concentrated their attention upon it.

But it remained for a layman, Col. Henry L. Doherty, to begin the most novel move in the battle, one which popularized the fight among all classes of Americans. President Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself a victim of infantile paralysis, inspired the move. President Roosevelt's previous interest in the cause of fellow sufferers had been repeatedly manifested by activities on behalf of the Warm Springs, Ga., foundation where victims are treated.

First President's Birthday Ball.

Visiting Warm Springs in 1933, Colonel Doherty also became deeply interested, and acquired a first-hand knowledge of the research and after-treatment work going forward in this country. He saw the need for more widespread co-ordination of effort. After discussing the matter with the President, he conceived the idea of a gigantic series of parties which would enable millions of Americans to do their share in the war on polio.

Under Colonel Doherty's direction the mammoth party-organizing task was started. A national headquarters was established in New York and civic-minded persons were called upon to help. The first series of parties was held on January 30, 1934, the President's birthday.

Funds Aid Experiment.

So far more than $4,000,000 has been raised by the annual parties. Seventy per cent remains to fight infantile paralysis in the community where it was raised, while 30 per cent goes to the national fund, to be used for research or rehabilitation work.

One important use to which the receipts from the parties was put was the development of the nasal spray preventive for poliomyelitis.

How this spray came to be discovered is a dramatic episode in medical history. The subvisible microbes have ever defied scientists to follow their meanderings. Yet, after long and brilliant experimentation, scientists in laboratories in New York, Chicago, Stanford university and London at last found out that the nose was a doorway to the polio virus.

In the laboratories of the United States public health service, Charles Armstrong, a "microbe hunter," decided that if he could find some means of blocking that doorway, there would be no way for the deadly germs to attack. For three years he experimented with a whole drove of rhesus monkeys. Finally he found what he wanted. By washing the insides of the monkeys' noses with a weak solution of picric acid and alum, he was able to save 24 out of 25 monkeys exposed to a hot, exceptionally dangerous infantile paralysis virus!

Confusion Hampers Test.

Armstrong was confident that if his solution worked with monkeys it ought to be effective on humans. But he was forced to wait for an opportunity to make the test. It apparently arrived last summer, when an epidemic broke out in Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee. Rushing to the scene, he won widespread support to his plan of spraying the solution into the children's noses.

He planned to have the doctors supervise the spraying and keep careful records. Unfortunately the experiment got out of hand: the doctors became swamped with demands upon their time and many parents used the easily procurable solution without bothering about scientific counsel on its use.

After salvaging what records he could and making extensive records of his own, Armstrong decided that a more powerful solution was needed. Two California scientists, working on funds supplied by the President's Birthday Ball commission, supplied it. They were E. W. Schultz and L. P. Gebhardt of Stanford university, and they offered a 1 per cent zinc sulphate solution. Zinc sulphate had been used for years as an eyewash. They discovered it was virtually 100 per cent effective in preventing infantile paralysis when sprayed into the noses of monkeys.

Nevada County Gold Producer

Grass Valley.—Nevada County's lode mines and placer operations produced approximately one-fourth of California's total gold last year, it was shown in a statement from the United States Bureau of Mines. The total production was 282,779 fine ounces of the precious metal, valued at $9,897,265, during 1936. The bulk of the production came from an area six miles square, comprising the Grass Valley-Nevada City mining district. Operators estimated the 1937 production will exceed last year's, despite the somewhat restricted operations because of unsettled labor conditions and the closing of several small mines.

Escaped Convict Caught

Folsom Prison. — Mike Dooble, alias John Avot, a fugitive from Folsom Prison for twenty years, is again wearing convict's garb—the result of having mixed liquor and gasoline. Arrested recently in Lassen County for reckless driving, Avot was sentenced to 25 days in the Lassen County jail. His fingerprints were taken and forwarded to the State bureau of criminal identification, where his true identity was revealed. Avot escaped from a prison road camp in 1917, after serving fourteen months of a two and one half year sentence for burglary. He will be compelled to finish his sentence plus an additional five years as his penalty for escaping.

BEDTIME STORY by Thornton W. Burgess

BLACKY THE CROW IS AS EXCITED AS SAMMY JAY

WHEN Sammy Jay came flying out of the Green Forest screaming at the top of his lungs and so excited that he couldn't talk straight, everybody said that he had gone crazy. You see, he was too excited to tell what the trouble was. At last his cousin, Blacky the Crow, managed to get him calmed down so that he could tell him all about it. When he heard the story which Sammy had to tell of the stranger he had seen deep in the Green Forest he looked very much as the other little people did when they heard Sammy screaming foolishly.

He Caught Himself Just in Time and Flew to the Top of the Nearest Pine Tree.

You see, it was very hard for Blacky to really believe that Sammy had seen what he had said he had. Not that he thought Sammy was telling a wrong story! Oh, my, no! Sammy was too much in earnest. What Blacky thought was that he had seen a lot more than he really had. You see, Blacky had lived a long time in the Green Forest and he never had seen or heard of such a stranger as Sammy told about.

He asked Sammy just where he had seen the stranger, and Sammy told him that it was way deep in the Green Forest, beyond the pond built by Paddy the Beaver. Now, Blacky believes that the only way to make sure of things is to see them, and not be content with the word of some one else. So he suddenly made up his mind that he would visit the place where Sammy Jay had seen the stranger. He invited Sammy to go along with him, but Sammy refused. It was very plain to see that Sammy was afraid of the stranger. Blacky chuckled to himself as he flew over the pond of Paddy the Beaver and so deep into the Green Forest.

"The idea," said Blacky, "of there being a stranger as big as Farmer Brown's Boy and wearing a black fur coat! Nobody like that ever has lived in the Green Forest. I guess I'd know if they had. Sammy must have eaten something and had a very bad dream, or else there is something the matter with his eyes."

He was talking to himself in this way as he flew along, all the time keeping a sharp watch for the stranger, when, without any warning, the stranger himself stepped out from behind a tree almost under Blacky. It startled Blacky so that he let out a frightened "Caw! Caw!" and nearly turned a somersault in the air. He caught himself just in time and flew to the top of the nearest pine tree, where he could look down and see all that was going on.

Everything was just as Sammy had said. The stranger did wear a black fur coat, he was as big as Farmer Brown's boy, and he did have great feet and the biggest claws Blacky had ever seen. Blacky felt just as if he ought to peck himself to make sure that he was awake. Of course he knew he was, but he just couldn't make it seem so.

Now, Blacky sometimes gets as excited as Sammy Jay, and this was one of the times. He started back for the Green Meadows as fast as he could fly, and all the way he was cawing at the top of his lungs. Sammy Jay heard him long before he saw him and Sammy grinned. "He found him!" thought Sammy. "Now he knows that I told the truth. My, but he sounds just as crazy as I ever did."

And then as Blacky came in sight Sammy once more grew excited, too, and began to scream questions at the top of his lungs, until it was hard to say who was screaming the loudest, Sammy or his big cousin, Blacky the Crow.

THE PANCAKE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HE SAYS, when I bring home a hat,
"Where in the world did you buy that?"
"At So-and-So's,
And goodness knows
It's long enough since I have had one!"
"The one you have is not a bad one,
But that's O. K.
But, anyway,
Your friends will ask you, with that hat on,
If it was made that way, or sat on."

"Well, that's the very latest style
They're wearing now, so you can smile."
He says, "No doubt,
Yes, laugh right out.
What puzzles me, I can't see through it,
Why do it just because they do it?"
"Well, that's the thing
In style this spring—"
"What I can't see, why spend good money
For anything to just look funny?"

We never do have spats
Except on one thing, and that's hats.
You might as well
Not try to tell
A man why anything's good-looking,
For all he thinks about is cooking.
I'm mad tonight
Enough to fight.
He said, "Ah, now I see the riddle:
Is this the pancake, or the griddle?"

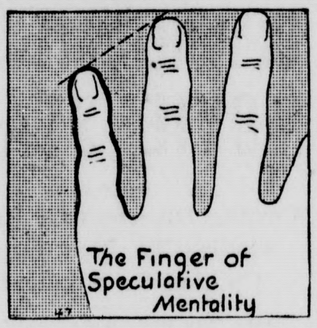
THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis

© Public Ledger, Inc



OCCASIONALLY one meets men and women whose greatest mental zest is found in anything which holds an element of risk. Such seem to possess the gambler's instinct, in business as well as social life. Such persons are often successful despite the dangers which their natures court; but just as often they find themselves on the "losing end of the game."

The Finger of Speculative Mentality

Even the most casual survey of this type of fourth finger will impress you with the extreme length and crookedness which are its most pronounced characteristics. The length of this type is exaggerated by its leanness and the peculiar knottiness of the knuckles. The joints are set at decided angles, which gives the entire finger a distorted appearance. This is most noticeable with the hand extended wide, when the entire finger falls far away from the third finger.

The nail tip is long and pointed with an extremely long and sharply convexed nail, which is often covered with small ridges running the full depth of the nail. Under backward pressure the finger is found to be stiffly resilient.

You need have no hesitancy in placing the owner of such a fourth finger as one who is at least a gambler at heart, and who enjoys nothing better than activities governed largely by chance.

King Cobra Eats Snakes

The king cobra is cannibalistic. That is, it generally refuses to eat anything but snakes, and it likes to kill them itself and devour them as they are dying from the effects of its poison. A meal of a snake lasts the king cobra many days, depending on the size of the snake eaten. But all cobras cannot live on other snakes, and the smaller common spectacled cobra of India eats chiefly frogs, rats and small birds.

Fine Feathers for Three

SEW-YOUR-OWN wouldn't be your weather prophet for the world, but you know, Milady, and so does S-Y-O, that it's always fair weather when good fashions get together. Which brings us to today's three sparkling new frocks—a whole crowd of style for the pretty part of any man's family.

A Fun Frock.

Here's to Mothers.

Sew-Your-Own loves nothing more than catering to mother's wardrobe needs. The frock above (center) is for all mothers: old sweet ones, young darling ones, yes, even for mothers-to-be. It is easy to run up, easy to do up, and best of all, easy to look at.

Little Brown Girl.

An all-over suntan is her forte, and many sunny days are ahead for young Miss Fortunate whose mommy chooses to interpret the fetching model at the right. A scallop-edged waist front accentuated by frou-frou trim is right down her avenue, and a gored skirt, that's second to none for class, fits into her scheme of things to a T. Mother, why not make one dressy version, as pictured, another finished differently for school? (Perhaps with a simple braid trim) Rayon prints, gingham, or sheer wool, will do nicely as the material.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1249 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1207 is designed for sizes 34 to 50. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35 inch material. With long sleeves 4¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1366 is designed for sizes 6 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅜ yards of 39-inch material plus 1¾ yards of machine pleating.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 149 New Montgomery Ave., San Francisco, Calif. Patterns 15 cents (in coins) each.

WOOD FLOORS ON CONCRETE

ONE very common complaint that I hear is the bulging and warping of wood floors that are laid on concrete floors in cellars. A cellar floor is usually laid directly on the earth, and inevitably contains moisture. The surface may appear dry, but even so, there is a continuous passage of moisture through the floor and into the air of the cellar. When anything is laid on the concrete, evaporation is prevented; moisture collects, and wood, linoleum, rugs or anything similar will suffer. A wood floor laid on concrete is particularly likely to rot. In absorbing moisture, wood swells and buckles.

Any covering for a concrete cellar floor should be waterproof and of a material that will not rot. Asphalt, either in the form of tiles or as a sheet, is satisfactory; for moisture cannot injure it. Asphalt tiles can be had in many different colors, and form a most attractive floor. They are laid in asphalt cement, which is also used in laying asphalt in sheet form.

When a wood floor is to be laid on concrete, one method is to cement it down with a layer of the same kind of asphalt cement; "mastic" is its usual name. This is becoming a very common method of laying a wood floor on concrete, and is a complete protection against rotting.

Also, there is a pleasant springiness to the floor. A less perfect method, but one that has many advantages, is to cover the concrete with sheets of heavy waterproof felt, with the edges overlapping. Two-by-fours are put down on this, and the wood flooring laid on top. This may not give complete protection against rotting, but it is far better than to lay the wood directly on the concrete.

ROCKAWAY BEACH PEDRO VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Riley and family of Burlingame are staying a few weeks at Shelter Cove. Mr. Riley is a representative of the Sir Thomas Lipton Tea Company and he has many interesting anecdotes to tell of the genial sportsman of the yachting world.

Frank Murphy, well known retired business man of San Francisco and Fairfax, entertained a number of guests at a venison dinner at Gus and Julia's place, Rockaway, Monday afternoon of this week. Following the dinner, the guests drove over to Harry Rees' roadhouse, where a jolly time was enjoyed, varied by horseback riding along the mountain trails for many of the guests. The Rees house has had a new coat of dazzling white paint with a blue trim for window frames and doors. The effect is extremely harmonious.

Mayor Jack Lawson and wife came down to visit the Beelers over the weekend. Tuesday brought two other good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brinkman, who spent the afternoon at the Beeler home. "Bill" has been laid up with an accident to his hand, painful, but not serious. He is out and about now, with his arm bandaged, but well on the way to recovery.

Josephine Anderson, daughter of Captain Anderson of the Olympic Fishing Barges at Hermosa Beach, was a visitor at the Lewis home, Shelter Cove, for a couple of weks. The young group had a fine time swimming, enjoying the Cove beach and going horseback riding. It was all a pleasant vacation prelude to the starting of school.

"Tripp," handsome black dog belonging to young Tommy Svornik, met death under an automobile several weeks ago. The boy was so proud of his fine dog, keeping him beautifully groomed, combed and washed, that the loss is felt keenly. Our sympathy, Tommy!

* * *

Mrs. Peter Haugaard's mother, Mrs. Small, of Glen Ellen, visited her at Shelter Cove over the weekend, returning to her home Tuesday afternoon.

Work speeds up on the new road between Rockaway and Montara, so hopes are entertained that soon the highway will be oiled and ready for the coastside bus to come through to Pedro, thus eliminating the long walk to the old road for those who have no car.

Grace Danmann, who suffered so severely in a recent automobile accident, expects to be well enough to return to her home in Pedro soon. She came down from San Francisco last Saturday, and stayed until Monday.

The Herman Bryants went to the city on Monday, taking with them Gladys Stuart and another neighbor.

The Pat Dempseys are adding a garden room, or arbor, to the southeast side of their house, with a pretty entrance from the front. Further plans include a French door opening from the living room, and a tiled pavement, making the new garden room decidedly artistic. The flower boxes at all the windows are another attractive feature recently added.

Mrs. Becky Johnson has had as a guest all this week, Miss Hershey of San Francisco.

Hector Martin has made a wonderful job of Mrs. Bicknell's store room shelves, etc. A great improvement. She is going to have a lunch room for the school children.

The Troglia winery is coming along quickly to completion at the side of the Rockaway road. Jim is going to make it as fine a place as possible.

* * *

Mrs. Edgar Bailey returned to Rockaway, Wednesday, from the Lane Hospital. She brought her baby son, William Frank, with her.

YOUNGSTERS AT HEATHER FARM SHOWING FORM

Master Of Breeding Rancho Enthuses Over Possibilities Of Crop Of Yearlings

Each week end J. W. Marchbank, owner of the Tanforan race track in this thriving town, goes over to his Heather Farm on the continental side of San Francisco Bay to give his blood stock the once over. Right now the "ranch" is extremely active as the breaking of the latest band of yearlings is in progress.

Mr. Marchbank knows all there is to be known about horses. He puts it in this picturesque fashion:

"Why, I was brought up on a horse."

So when he drives to Heather Farm early each Sunday he does more than look over the young ones. He gives specific instructions to the men in charge as to what to do in order to develop a lot of tractable babies filled with ambition to outspeed whatever colt ranges alongside.

It is the custom of the breeder to get out of the hay each morning at five o'clock, winter and summer, and he expects everyone in his employ to do the same thing. Accordingly proceedings at the ranch start early. Owner Marchbank has found by experience it is the best to be finished with the young stock long before the heat of the day and invariably follows the "early bird" idea.

In amplifying his statement that he was brought up on a horse—Marchbank tells of going out on the plains as a boy and "reaming" the fleetest one in a band of wild horses. He was a crack shot, somewhat of the William Tell order apparently. He undoubtedly gets the word "ream" from his Scotch forbears as the word is better known in England and Scotland than in this country.

To hear him tell it one can imagine the art of winging a wild animal of the equine tribe must be only for the best shots in the world. The idea is to "pop" the plunging fellow in the fleshy part of the neck or shoulder. For the bullet to strike a vital spot would of course ruin the whole game. When the animal is wounded superficially the lariat comes into play. Once lassoed the horse is brought into camp by his justifiably proud captor. In a few days the wound is healed and one more wild animal has been not only tamed but transformed into a highly useful saddle horse.

Heather Farm's master has the best yearlings this fall that he has ever bred. Of that he is sure. He is willing to wager all of the twelve will earn brackets as two year olds. As is well known, Marchbank is always willing to take a chance. For example, he'll bet either way, that is, that a particular horse will win or will lose. In fact, he was booking on races in Idaho quite a number of years ago. He was betting horses, especially the favorite, would lose.

"Do you think my old friend, Colonel Bradley, would make his customary offer at even money that a yearling would not win as a two year old after 'sizing up' this lot?" was the poser he put to the listeners last Sunday at the ranch.

No one could answer the question, so the asker did it himself.

"Look at those Xenofols. Did you ever see such size and substance? And whoever heard of a War Cry that couldn't win? The King Heathers need no defender. They win everywhere."

His enthusiasm was contagious. There was not a dissenter to his asseveration that Mr. Marchbank was one breeder Ed Bradley would not take on.

Unlike the previous band in which the sexes were equally divided, there are nine fillies this fall and three colts. It is planned to complete their primary education as racers in time to have them saddled for baby scrambles early in the year.

GIRLS MAY HAVE OPPORTUNITY AS MOVIE STARS

Casting Directors Of Picture Studios To Pass Expert Opinion On Applicants

Daly City girls were urged today to contact headquarters of the San Mateo County Floral Fiesta at once for consideration as either a hostess for the publicity committee or as one of the leading ladies in the Fiesta pageant, highlight of the September 23-26 show.

Northern San Mateo County has failed to respond to calls for talent, Fiesta managers reported, and the set rule that all persons given parts as pageant stars or as hostesses must live in the county has suffered from this lack of response.

Visiting all productions of the pageant will be casting directors of major Hollywood Studios. This will give all persons in the cast an opportunity to be viewed by an expert with the chance that their acting, singing or dancing may win for them a test before the motion picture camera.

A. H. Severin, pageant committee head, implored all residents to apply for a part in the pageant, pointing out that "we are still looking for a good looking young woman with a voice for the leading feminine role in the pageant—and she must be a resident of San Mateo County.

Meanwhile, the publicity committee listed two girls from the

Calvary Baptist Church Services

To open the fall program of the Calvary Baptist Church, 5724 Mission street, San Francisco, Pastor Miles Dawson announces a Great Victory Week program, which commenced last Wednesday night, when he was host to the church at a buffet supper, and will continue until next Wednesday night.

The services of the church on Sunday will be some of the greatest in this church's history, church leaders say. The feature of the day will come in the morning service at 11 o'clock, when the pastor's father, radio pastor of KQW, Rev. D. M. Dawson of San Jose, will deliver the morning sermon, and at the same service will dedicate his own granddaughter, Judith Ann.

Stuart Foster, superintendent of the Bible School, is expecting an unusual attendance at the session of the school at 9:45; Mrs. Rachel Lund, Verlon Nickelson and Harold Allison, leaders of the Youth groups of the church, are leading a great Youth Rally at 6:30; and the day's program will come to a close at 7:45 with a "Victorious Evangelistic Service," the pastor preaching the sermon.

Calvary Church broadcasts from KLS at 10 o'clock Saturday evening.

PREPARATIONS FOR STATE FAIR NEARING CLOSE

Children's Day To Be Featured By Parade—Movie Monkey To Lead March

Preparations for a history making California State Fair at Sacramento, September 3 to 12, are rapidly drawing to a close.

Final touches being made to the all around Fair program assure among many things an outstanding race meet, an unprecedented attractions schedule and recognition for principal California industries.

One of the half hundred features will be Children's Day, the first day of the exposition, when a grand parade to the grounds will be staged.

For the benefit of the children it has been arranged that Jiggs, the Movie Monkey, a performer on trapeze and stage, will lead the march. Jiggs is one of those "educated monkeys" that can do almost anything that a human can.

Many of the children will be supplied with paper maiche costumes patterned to the likeness of different vegetables. This pageant will be in celebration of Agricultural Day, which also occurs the first day of the fair.

A summary of events at the fair show that approximately 75 statewide organizations are holding meetings at the ten day exposition.

In the farm groups, the Grange and Farm Bureau are holding special meetings. In addition, a special train from Los Angeles and one from Yreka, one carrying 4-H Club girls and boys to the grounds and one bringing a caravan of implement dealers from the east, are scheduled.

Evening Classes At High School

Evening classes, free to every adult living in the Jefferson Union High School District, will open on next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the high school. The session will be from 7 to 9 o'clock each Tuesday and Thursday evening.

Classes will be formed in Shorthand, Typewriting, Americanization and English for Foreigners. Those who desire to get their citizenship papers will receive special help in preparing for the examinations.

Quickly Accepts Unique Proposal

When a young man, Daniel Webster, with the assistance of a Miss Fletcher, was endeavoring to open a package which had arrived by post, but was experiencing some trouble untying the string with which it was fastened. When this had been accomplished, he said, "We have been successful in untying a knot. Suppose we try to tie one which will last through life."

Taking a ribbon, he partially tied a knot, and handed it to her to finish. This she did, thereby accepting his proposal of marriage.

Years later, in a box marked "Precious Documents," the ribbon was discovered. It was still tied.

TIRE PATCH

Blow-out patches should be removed and permanent repairs made to a damaged tire as soon as possible, according to the Emergency Road Service of the California State Automobile Association. Such patches have a tendency to throw both tire and wheel out of balance and also cause chafing which eventually results in permanent damage.

Relief For Problem Of Washington Housing Shortage Soon To Be Consummated

(By Hart Goodrich)

If you were paying from $30 to $50 per month for a crowded, old, hot-in-summer, cold-in-winter apartment, how would you like to move into a new, attractive, cool home at about $26 to $46 a month which includes your gas, electricity and water. That is what is happening to 1000 lucky families who will occupy the first units of Greenbelt, Maryland. Eventually 3000 families will live here.

There is an acute housing shortage in Washington which has increased rents to one-third above the national average.

This community has been developed by the Resettlement Administration just five miles from Washington for families with incomes from $1200 to $2000 per year.

This is not a slum clearance project and will not affect those who can afford to pay more rent, but is designed for the "in-between" families.

The town will have its own stores, schools, community buildings, post office, utilities, theater and recreational area which includes a 25-acre "made" lake. Space has been alloted outside the town for gardens, giving those residents who desire it the opportunity to increase their real income by subsistence gardening.

Considerable time and money had to be expended in planning Greenbelt, since there were no precednts to follow. However, now the pattern is set and similar communities could be built for considerably less.

When completed this housing project will have furnished labor to some 5000 workmen on the relief rolls, while creating a real asset to the nation; it will relieve somewhat the housing shortage in Washington, where rents are abnormally high; it will demonstrate how city planning can reduce traffic hazards and accidents; it will give low-income families an opportunity to supplement their incomes through the use of allotment gardens; it will be a demonstration of the possibilities of combining city and country life.

Greenbelt is another project to be added to the long list of this administration's practical plans to improve yours and mine, and Mr. and Mrs. American Citizen's standard of living and pleasure in living.

HAND THAT RULES

GUDRUN MILLER

The hand that rules the world is an iron hand so far as friend husband is concerned in the current play "Power" at the Alcazar Theater in San Francisco. Content with letting things run as they are hubby (Leon Forbes) is loathe to do anything about straightening things out until the bills come in. Then he registers a strong kick.

Playing the part of the city wife, Gudrun Miller, whose portrait appears above, applies the rowels and directs her better (or lesser) half on a course that results in stirring up interest for him—and the audience. Miss Miller's appearance, brief though it is, adds much to the comedy of the scene.

"Power" presents the story of electricity in nineteen fast moving scenes, each of which carries the punch of a last minute news bulletin in a daily paper. The play is scheduled for a wind-up in the very near future after having done capacity business since the opening. It will be followed by a Eugene O'Neill drama, "Beyond The Horizon."

Both plays are Federal Theater productions.

Steady Growth In Motor Car Travel

Comment was made this week by the manager of the Mission Auto Company, Chrysler-Plymouth dealer here, that an unusually large volume of motor car travel is indicated for 1937.

An all time record was set for automobile travel in 1935. In 1936 this mark was exceeded by a substantial amount and 1937 promises to top even the new peak of 1936. This estimate was based on the fact that this year a far greater percentage of sales has been made of touring sedans than ever before.

"Prospective purchasers who come into our showrooms," the manager stated, "seem particularly interested in the luggage carrying facilities of our products. Chrysler body designers have been unusually conscious of this trend and have provided exceptionally commodious trunks in both Chrysler and Plymouth."

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure by the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed a hitherto unknown will with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House, get friendly with Brooke and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reyburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce a new play locally. After the Thanksgiving dinner Brooke tells Mark that little of Mrs. Dane's silver collection is left. Jerry Field and his sister Daphne drop in and announce they will be neighbors for the winter. Later Inspector Harrison of the local police visits Mark and is informed about the missing will and silver. As Harrison leaves, Lola arrives. She announces that she and her new husband, Bert Hunt, have started a neighborhood filling station. Mark almost makes a break about the missing will and Brooke is suspicious. Returning home, she sees Lola talking covertly to Henri. "Mr. Micawber," Mrs. Dane's pet parrot, is missing. Henri is ugly and warns Brooke she had better like him and Clotilde. That night while the cast of Sam's play is rehearsing and the Jacques are away, Mark shows Brooke the missing silver which he had found cached in an unused upper floor store room in his house. A black gloved hand pulls the key from the storeroom door.

"Jed stopped at your house for a minute, he'll be here pronto; the other actors—so-called—have gone home. I'll say I'm here early. After they'd walked through the first act, it was a choice between dismissing the cast or shooting them. I had a sane interval and decided not to shoot. I'm giving them tomorrow night off."

"Then I'll throw a party for the Reyburns and Fields at that new Supper club just opened in town. Give them a let-up from the play. What say, maestro?"

"Okay with me. It's darned good of you. Perhaps I have overworked them, but there is so little time before the performance." Sam sat up and ran his fingers through his hair. "With that so near, wouldn't you think those dumb-bells would know their parts? I ask you! Besides that, the leading man has walked out on us."

"It's tough. Can I help, Sam?"

"Can you help! I'll say you can. 'Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party.' Take the lead." He caught Trent's arm. "Be a good scout. Help a poor, distracted playwright-producer, will you? With you and the Crane woman in the leads, we'll make a two-star offering of it. That girl's good."

Sam's despair had changed to exultation. Mark Trent temporized: "How do you know I'm good?"

"How do those bozos out in Hollywood know an actor will be a wow on the screen sometimes before they give him a try-out? Something here, m'lad, something here," Sam tapped his broad brow, "tells me you'll be stopping the show."

"That same something couldn't tell you where I'm to get the time for a theatrical career, could it? All right, all right," Mark conceded in response to Sam's groan, "I'll take the part. Give me the sides and I'll try to know the lines at the next rehearsal."

Sam caught Brooke as she entered the room. He hugged her as he exulted:

"What d'you think, gal? Trent has signed up for 'Islands Arise'! Will he pack 'em in as the lead? I ask you!"

Jerry Field appeared at the door beating a huge spoon against a tin pan.

"First call for the dining car! First call—"

Sam held up his hand.

"Just a minute! We're all invited to dine and dance tomorrow by the new male lead in 'Islands Arise,' Mark Trent! Sam Reyburn announcing."

"You in the play, Mark?"

"How exciting!"

"Dinner and dance in the big city! What a break!"

Jerry Field interrupted the excited comments.

"Where are your gardenias, Brooke?"

His tone set Mark Trent's lips twitching. Under cover of lighting a cigarette, he caught the girl's furtive glance at the wastebasket. She put her hand to her shoulder.

"Why—why I must have dropped them."

"Where've you been?"

"Hi there, m'lad!" Sam's tone and manner were those of a stern parent guarding his offspring. "That isn't a topic for group discussion. We don't make people punch the time-clock in this family."

Jerry Field's face turned a bright and lively crimson; his voice and eyes were furious.

"I wasn't asking Brooke to punch the time-clock. I thought I might find the gardenias for her.—I"

He stopped as Jed Stewart appeared on the threshold. He was tapping a gardenia against his lips.

"Run to earth, Mark. Who's the charmer who leaves a flower outside your door?"

An hour later Jed Stewart slumped deeper into a crimson-cushioned chair in Mark Trent's library and demanded:

"How was I to know that Field had brought Brooke the gardenias? Didn't he look like a meat-axe though, when I barged into Lookout House waving that flower and giving the whole show away by telling where I picked it up? I'm the original village cut-up, I am." He lighted his pipe.

"It wasn't all my fault. I didn't know, did I, Mark, that you and she had been cruising round this house?"

"You didn't. I hadn't told you then that I had discovered Aunt Mary Amanda's silver parked in a storeroom. Decided to wait till I had the goods on someone, but I couldn't resist the temptation to show it to Brooke. You should have seen her eyes when she saw it piled on that table."

He poked the fire till orange and scarlet flames, shot with pale green, roared up the chimney and sent a tangy puff of wood smoke into the room.

The sharp ring of the phone broke the silence.

"Trent speaking.—Lola! What do you want?—Not interested. If you like selling gas, sell it, only remember that the allowance stops.—Is she? Mrs. Gregory's word goes, here. You should have made sure of that before you set up shop.—What? What sort of paper?" Mark Trent looked at Jed Stewart who had come close and was moving his lips without making a sound. He nodded understanding. "I haven't rung off.—Yes, I heard what you said. I can't imagine how any paper you may have will interest me, but bring it here tomorrow at five.—Sure, I'll be alone.—Yes. Good-by."

"Lola has a 'paper' to sell me. She suggested that I have my checkbook in hand tomorrow. What do you make of it?"

"If it is the 'paper' Mrs. Gregory witnessed, how could she get hold of it?"

"Henri?"

"She said he had written to her, didn't she? She's bringing it tomorrow afternoon! There's a catch in it somewhere. It sounds too easy. You don't think she'll back out at the last minute, do you, Mark?"

"Not if there is money in it. She said also that Mrs. Gregory was putting the filling-station out of business. It was started without a license. Started for the sole purpose of chiseling money off me, I suspect."

"Right as usual. What say we call this an evening? I'm due in court in the morning in my best Gentlemen of the Jury style; furthermore, we'll need our brains running wide open when Lola comes at five. She has a 'paper' to sell! Won't we feel cheap about our suspicions of Brooke if it proves to be the 'paper' we're after?"

"I stopped suspecting her some time ago. Shall we go up? We are getting provincial. If we were in town we'd be just beginning to go places. Toddle along. I'll put out the lights."

Mark banked the fire before he ran up the stairs. Jed Stewart yawned as he stood at his door.

"In spite of the late excitement, I'm sleepy. Nightie-night, Mark. I'll drop our problem into what the psychologists call the deep mind. Perhaps it will float to the top in the morning all nicely solved." He was whistling softly as he closed his bedroom door.

Mark crossed his dark room to the window. What a night! The sky was powdered with stars. The sparks of gold were like the lights in Brooke Reyburn's eyes when she was happy or thrilled, and she had been thrilled when she had heard of his plan to dine and dance in town.

He drew the gardenia from his pocket. Nothing beautiful about it now but the leaves. He didn't need a paper which Lola Hunt might produce to clear his mind of suspicion that Brooke had influenced his aunt in any way. He drew the flash light from his coat pocket. Lucky he had thought of it when he had taken Brooke to see the silver.

"Mark! Mark!"

Jed's voice? He laid the flower on the dresser before he opened the door. With the electric torch still in his hand he crossed the hall and knocked at Jed Stewart's door. He knocked again. Why didn't he answer? He flung open the door. A coat had been hung over the back of a chair. A shoe lay on the floor. Cold air was stirring the chintz hangings. Where did it come from?

The bath-room! Mark sprinted to the door and stopped in amazement. The window was wide open, but the air was strongly scented with perfume. The shower was dripping. Shaving materials were flung about as if hastily dropped.

He thrust his head out of the window. There were two ways to escape from the little balcony under it. Drop to the terrace, or through Lookout House. Had Jed and an intruder crashed in there? Brooke would be frightened. He'd follow them. He swung his leg over the sill.

"Stop!"

He went rigid in obedience to the hoarse warning, but only for an instant. Why was he perching like a dummy with the light from the room behind making him a perfect target for the person who had grunted? He moved his leg. No response to that from the balcony. Quickly he flashed his powerful light in the direction from which the sound had come. That would blind the person watching.

His eyes followed the light. In his amazement he lost his balance and pitched forward. At one corner of the railing, blinking and shivering in the glare, huddled the run-away green parrot.

Held up by a bird! He slid to the balcony. Reached for Mr. Micawber, grabbed him, flung him into the room behind him. He could hear the parrot squawking with fury as he closed the window.

"That seems to be that! Now, where's Jed?"

He peered over the railing. No uprights on this balcony to slide down. The next one had iron trellises which connected it with the stone terrace. Had Jed entered Lookout House by the window? Who occupied the room of the next house which opened on it? He would investigate.

He tiptoed to the window, reduced the light in his torch before he flashed it over the glass. The shade was closely drawn and the sash locked. No one could have gone in there. Cracks of light were visible in the two rooms beyond where French windows opened on another balcony. Had Jed entered that lighted room? How could he get there? He was too stout to swing across. Could he himself do it?

He appraised the distance, stepped over, and swung. Cautiously he stepped over the rail and ripped his hands from the frosty iron.

With his heart drumming like an airplane motor he concentrated his attention on the window. A crack of light showed between the hangings. Whose room was it? Should he take a chance that it was Sam's or Brooke's and tap lightly?

A window was being opened cautiously. Where? He flattened himself against the house. Must be the end balcony outside the studio. He visualized the interior as he had seen it the day he had helped Jerry Field sketch in the tree trunks on the backdrop. Someone was crawling out! A man! He was sliding down an iron trellis like a monkey! Now he was running across the lawn bent double! He was entering the garage!

Mark Trent crammed the electric torch into his pocket and swung a leg over the railing. He hitched along till his feet found an upright, went down hand over hand, his palms sticking painfully to the iron as he moved them.

From purple tree shadow to purple tree shadow he skulked. Near the garage he hid behind shrubs. The click of a lock! He held his breath as he listened. Who had been in the Lookout House garage at this time of night? Whoever it was, was leaving. He could hear cautious footsteps. An automobile starting! He strained his ears. It was speeding down the street toward the causeway. That didn't prove anything, it would be easy enough to turn into a side road and cut back. Was the man who had sneaked from the house driving? Had he stolen the car? Even so, he couldn't follow it, he must find out why he had entered the garage.

7. Contrary to general opinion, says a specialist, there is no small eye or large eye. All eyes are approximately of the same size. The reason for the apparent difference depends upon the orifice or aperture through which the eyes are seen. It is the variable diameter of this opening that creates the erroneous impression of different sizes of eyes.

8. There are three ways in which salt may be secured: First, by mining; second, by evaporation of sea water; and third, by digging wells until a salt vein is struck and then pouring water and pumping it up again as brine.

Cruelty

"Madam, your confounded dog has torn my trousers!"

"Naughty, naughty Fido! I shall punish him severely. I shall take his pink ribbon away from him for a whole week."

Another Gal

"I can't understand why I didn't accept you the first time you proposed."

"That's easy. You weren't there."

Beyond Him

She did not understand the thermometer, but she took her husband's temperature with it and then held a match under it to read it properly. She sent a frantic message to the doctor: "Come at once: temperature 156 degrees."

To which the doctor replied: "I can do nothing. Send for the fire brigade!"

RECREATE!

THE leisure time period contributes most to the development of the individual. It has been said, "What we earn while at work we put into our pockets, and what we spend during our leisure time we put into our character." Our occupations are tending to become more and more specialized and one-sided. So much of the time we are using only one part of our body or mind, allowing the other parts to deteriorate through disuse. There is great need, therefore, for our leisure-time activities to provide opportunities for developing those faculties which remain inactive during the working period and thus build a more all-around individual.

Active recreation, such as sports, games, dramatics and singing, develops powers of self-expression, of individuality, of initiative and of decision which many occupations tend to stifle. They provide a beneficial outlet for our natural demand for play and help to form certain desirable habits of perseverance, pluck, quick thinking, self-restraint and co-operation.

Fair play learned in games makes it easier to live a clean, courageous and generous life. Group activities also render service to the individual by promoting his happiness and decreasing his loneliness.

Life's Tenderness

What seems to grow fairer to me as life goes by is the love and grace and tenderness of it; not its wit and cleverness and grandeur of knowledge (grand as knowledge is), but just the laughter of little children and the friendship of friends; the cozy talk by the fireside; the sight of flowers and the sound of music.—John Green.

TESTED AND PROVED ON THE FARM

THE AMAZING New Firestone GROUND GRIP TIRE

PROVIDES GREATER DRAWBAR PULL, GREATER TRACTION AND SAVES MORE TIME AND FUEL

NEWS of the amazing performance of the NEW Firestone Ground Grip Tire is sweeping rural America. Farmers everywhere who have seen this new tire are so enthusiastic about it that sales have been climbing steadily upward and production has been greatly increased to meet the demand.

Why all this enthusiasm? Those of you who have seen the new Firestone Ground Grip Tire in action know the answer. Tests show that it will pull a three-bottom plow under soil conditions where other makes of tires can pull only a two-bottom plow. The re-designed tread gives greater traction and better self-cleaning action. It will not pack the soil — in fact, it leaves a mulch on the surface of the tread track that prevents rapid evaporation of moisture in the soil. These tests also show up to 30% more available drawbar pull on dry sod, up to 40% more on dry plowed ground, up to 50% more on wet plowed ground than with any other tire tested.

Only in Firestone Tires do you get so many patented extra-quality features. The Ground Grip Tread is patented and is made of specially compounded rubber which resists the action of sun, rain and snow. Gum-Dipping is a patented Firestone Process, by which every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber which gives added strength to resist the strain of heavy pulling. The Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords under the tread are patented. This Firestone construction feature binds the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit.

You want and need ALL these features. Only Firestone has them! See this new tire at your nearest Firestone Implement Dealer, Tire Dealer or Auto Supply & Service Store today.

If you have not received a copy of the new Firestone Farm Tire Catalog, please send your name and address to The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, or Los Angeles, California, and a copy will be mailed to you promptly.

GREATER DRAWBAR PULL
Increased height of the new Ground Grip tread and the improved design and spacing of the heavy traction lugs result in much greater drawbar pull.

GREATER TRACTION
The increased penetration of the improved Ground Grip tread gives a deeper "bite" resulting in greater traction.

GREATER FUEL SAVINGS
Tests show savings of as much as 50% in fuel as compared with steel-lugged wheels.

GREATER TIME SAVINGS
The increased traction enables you to cover much greater acreage in a day.

WEATHER-PROOFED
The Ground Grip Tread is made of special weather-resisting rubber which is unaffected by hot sun, rain or snow.

GIVE US MEN!

God give us men. A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands.
Men whom the lust of office does not kill,
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy,
Men who possess opinions and a will,
Men who love honor, men who cannot lie.—J. G. Holland.

Entry blanks for hostesses are available at the office of the Daly City Record. Entrants in the pageant may get casting cards from Fiesta headquarters, 116 B. street, San Mateo.

Throughout the county residents everywhere are donning Spanish regalia to advertise the Fiesta. Merchants of Daly City have been urged to dress themselves, and have employes dress, in Spanish apparel from now until after the Fiesta is over.

Taking the lead in preparation for the Fiesta is San Mateo, which city, through its Junior Chamber of Commerce, has already costumed nearly every working person in some sort of Spanish clothing and which has promised utmost co-operation with the Fiesta.

Lou Ashe, director with Fanchon and Marco, who has been named in charge of production for the Fiesta pageant by the Fiesta commission, has arrived to take charge of the show and will start casting main parts and will begin rehearsals at once.

place their names on a waiting list for future admission. United States history required four classes, and World history three. In typewriting, eight classes were needed, and in almost all of these every machine was taken. Only in one or two of the advanced classes is there a vacancy. It was necessary to form an additional class in stenography.

The first day of school was taken up with registration and the making out of individual programs, followed by short sessions in which class enrollment was completed. On Tuesday, textbooks were distributed, lockers assigned to new students and the regular work of the term was started under way.

Principal James Ferguson reports that at no time have the students of the high school gotten down to work with greater promptness.

At the general assembly on Monday morning the principal called attention to the progress being made in the construction of the gymnasium and swimming pool and reminded the students that special favors would be granted in the use of the swimming pool to students having a perfect record in attendance.
